

ENVIRONMENTAL MOVEMENT

Lucy Wang

Wendy Tang

Yuki Tang

5-26-15

American History

Why we choose this topic

Our topic is the Environmental Movement. Environmental abuse was a prominent widespread protest. The Environmental Movement was rejuvenated as a result of the heightened activism of the period. The reason why we choose this topic is that after World War 2, the damages of environment is a big problem, and there are a lot of environmental problems nowadays. Human make pollution all the time.

How we conducted your research

We have three people in our group to finish the website. Each of us has one topic to research, and we do our own bibliography. Basically we find information online, and do research in some Chinese book and translate. We send all researches to Lucy, and she is responsible for organizing them.

How we selected your presentation category and created your project

Firstly, we list all the subtitle of the section that is in the book, and then each of us choose three to do research. We mainly use brown, green, yellow and some deep colors to fill in our website, which means woods, soil, and nature.

The influence of our topic

The peak of environmental legislation in the U.S. occurred in the 1960s and 1970s. In the 1970s in particular, the U.S. Congress passed a number of important laws to repair environmental damage and protect the environment from further pollution. In fact, the relatively clean and healthy environment people enjoy today is a result of the laws passed during this period.